Protect Our Letter Carriers Act (H.R. 1065/S. 463)

Since the inception of the nation's post office 250 years ago, letter carriers have delivered to every community on every street in the United States without being the targets of violence. In recent years, that has changed.

While in 2024 (the most recent data available) assaults and robberies against postal employees decreased about 25 percent, robberies remain more than 400 percent higher than they were before the pandemic. Nearly 400 postal employees were assaulted and 477 were robbed in 2024.

Due to the solitary nature of letter carriers' work and the sensitive equipment they carry, city letter carriers are the target in the majority of these incidents. Most of these attacks involve a firearm or other weapon. Unfortunately, nearly every day, we learn of other instances of letter carriers being assaulted or robbed while delivering mail and packages. Tragically, six letter carriers have been murdered while dutifully doing their jobs since 2022.

The Protect Our Letter Carriers Act (POLCA) is bipartisan legislation that seeks to prevent these crimes from happening. POLCA would devalue key infrastructure, deter these crimes through stricter prosecution and sentencing guidelines, and keep letter carriers safe on the job. The nation's 200,000 city letter carriers deliver medications, checks, ballots, packages and other essential mail that Americans depend on. For America's mail to be protected, the letter carriers who deliver it must be, too.

Secure and modernize postal infrastructure

POLCA would provide $7 billion in funding for the Postal Service to secure its infrastructure, including the installation of high-security collection boxes as well as the replacement of items carried by letter carriers with more secure electronic versions. The funding would be appropriated over five years, $1.4 billion annually in Fiscal Years 2026-2030.

A recent audit of the United States Postal Inspection Service (USPIS) data found that 52 percent of robberies of a letter carrier involved the theft of postal infrastructure items that have become highly sought after on the black market in recent years. Similarly, the Postal Service has reported increased high-volume mail theft incidents from mail receptacles, including blue collection boxes.

In response, the Postal Service has begun reinforcing its infrastructure, including items carried by letter carriers on the job. The bill would provide the necessary funding to implement this updated technology nationwide. When key infrastructure is devalued and more secure, letter carriers will be safer on their routes.

Increase prosecution rates

Alarming, while crimes against letter carriers have persisted, arrests and prosecution against the alleged perpetrators have not been appropriately prioritized. A few years ago, the majority of these cases were not prosecuted. Due to workload and other priorities, these cases sat on district attorneys' desks, were not federally prosecuted, and the alleged assailants were not held accountable. Fortunately, as letter carriers have continued to make the issue known, more of these cases have moved through federal courts. While the improvement is a positive sign, every single crime against a letter carrier should be prosecuted in a timely manner.

POLCA would require the attorney general to promptly designate an assistant U.S. attorney in each judicial district to prioritize any case that involves an assault or crime against a letter carrier. Their principal responsibility in the district would be coordinating and supervising the investigation and prosecution of these alleged crimes.

Harsher sentencing for robbery and assault of a letter carrier

Even though letter carriers who are victims of these crimes are federal employees in uniform on the job, under current law, the sentencing guidelines for those found guilty of these crimes are overly weak and permissive. In 2024, a San Francisco defendant was convicted of robbing a letter carrier at gunpoint and sentenced to only 30 days' imprisonment, while in Mississippi a defendant was sentenced to eight years.

This bill would standardize and strengthen sentencing guidelines for these crimes, ensuring that they are treated in the same manner as assaults on federal law enforcement officers.

NALC supports the Protect Our Letter Carriers Act, which would modernize key infrastructure, deter these crimes through stricter prosecution and sentencing guidelines, and keep letter carriers safe as they deliver essential mail and packages to every community in the country. Sponsored by Reps. Brian Fitzpatrick (R-PA) and Greg Landsman (D-OH) and Sens. Kirsten Gillibrand (D-NY) and Josh Hawley (R-MO)
